

LSD COLONY?

Leary Would Need U.S. Okay In Chiricahuas

By HELEN PASTERNAK
Citizen Staff Writer

Dr. Timothy Leary, self-styled high priest of LSD, may be fascinated with the Chiricahua Mountains, but he would need Uncle Sam's permission to go ahead with a colony on federal land.

This comment was offered today by Clyde Doran, supervisor of the Coronado National Forest, who was on tour of the Chiricahuas yesterday — as was Leary.

Leary is believed looking for a new colony site for his believers.

Leary, said Doran, might be in search of private land. But, he added, if the one-time professor wants to settle on federal land, he (Leary) would have to apply for a permit first.

Because the Chiricahuas are public land, Doran said, Leary would have to be treated the same as anyone else.

There is little chance of his obtaining a permit for a colony in the mountains.

Most of the Chiricahuas, according to the Coronado supervisor, are designated wilderness area. This means no occupancy is permitted on the land.

Sites set aside for organizations already have been taken.

A section reserved for the National Park Service also does not permit occupancy.

Anaconda Ad Slaps At Union

BUTTE, Mont. (UPI) — Anaconda Co. lashed out again Wednesday at striking copper unions in a newspaper advertisement, charging the strike impact on Montana's economy to date was nearly $2 million.

In the largest ad in the newspaper — fought war in the Montana Standard between the two disputing sides, the company claimed the strike was costing $265,000 per day. This added to $19,875,000 for the first 75 days of the strike.

The average wages lost to date by striking employees, the firm said, was $1,412. Anaconda said if the workers got a raise of 7.5 cents per hour it would take slightly more than nine years to make up for the time-lost wages.

The net loss to the state through decreased income, metal mines and corporation taxes and increased welfare payments and secondary effects was $1,408,500, the company said.

Anaconda asserted the strike would never have happened since it urged a "policy of working while negotiating until we could reach a settlement." It said this was the same course followed in 1964 and other years.

The firm said it had offered wage increases of from $11.40 to $17 per week plus an increase in the welfare pension.

It again blamed national union negotiators for stalemating any settlement.

James E. Fenimore Book Store Officer Joins Board Race

James E. Fenimore, textbook manager at the Arizona Book Store, announced his candidacy today for the Sunnyside School Board.

Fenimore, a Tucson resident since 1956, holds a law degree from the University of Arizona. He and his wife, Janice, have four children. The family resides at 433 W. Calle Antonio.

Fenimore will face four other candidates in the Tuesday election for a five-year board term. They are incumbent Paul D. Hult, James L. Rainey, John H. Pruden and Walter A. Holliday Jr.

Weed, Dust Control Urged By Southard

Adequate weed and dust control measures were urged today by M. J. Southard, Republican candidate for mayor.

"We must provide measures to insure our healthful climate," Southard told members of the Pima County Republican Women's Club luncheon.

Southard said there are 50,000 people in the community who suffer from allergies such as hay fever and other respiratory ailments.

"I believe that measures should be worked out to control air pollution along with dust and weed problems so that Tucson's climate remains one of the major attractions of the city," he said.

Appearing on the same p...

gram with Southard was Dr. Conrad Joyner, Republican candidate for the council in Ward 4. Joyner called for cooperation between Phoenix and Tucson.

"I propose that the mayor and council of Tucson initiate regular meetings with our counterparts in Phoenix," he said.

He said the purpose would be to "learn from one another regarding possible solutions to problems" and to "exchange views on matters which come before the State Legislature and the national Congress."

"If we believe that local problems can best be handled by state and local governments, let's start acting like it," he added.

Urban Renewal 'Pied Pipers'

This Is How It Will Look

Donald Laidlaw, urban renewal director, wearing a white shirt (and with arm raised) tells a group of residents of the urban renewal project area about city plans for the sites of their homes.

Urban Renewers Turn Pitchmen

By CHARLES TURBYVILLE
Citizen Staff Writer

An evident failure of communication with many residents of the urban renewal project area prompted city officials to try a new tack last night.

Accompanied by a mariachi band, officials led by Donald Laidlaw, urban renewal director, set up shop at the corner of W. McCormick St. and S. El Paso Ave. and answered the questions of all comers.

Laidlaw said the street-corner confrontation was a success.

Others weren't so pleased.

Edward Jacobs, a large property owner in the project area who has taken up the cause of some residents, said the affair was an attempt to brainwash homeowners. He called it "a fraud."

A reporter who was present came away with the impression that not many minds were changed. Most of those who showed up apparently already had decided not to accept the city's offer for their property, and seemed determined to seek higher prices through court actions.

Some residents of the area are convinced the city is trying to cheat them. And in this particular part of the project area, there are a number of people who simply don't want to move.

It is a long-established Mexican-American residential community. Many residents are elderly people who have lived there most of their lives.

There are complaints from some about what they consider an overbearing attitude on the part of some city officials.

"How come the big bosses are always apologizing and the underlings are always pushing us around?" asked Mrs. Eve Fitzguson, 312 W. Blenman St.

The city has acquired around 30 per cent of the property in the project area already.

Next month, the legal procedure leading to condemnation of the remaining parcels will begin. Laidlaw said, however, that negotiations with owners will continue.

Indigent Care Study Agreed On

The man perhaps most interested in a survey of indigent hospital care here is the man whose facility — and job — could be eliminated by such a study.

Dr. A. M. Libasci, administrator of the Pima County Hospital, made his views known yesterday at a meeting of representatives from five local hospitals. There was general agreement that a survey by an outside agency is needed.

"The entire problem of indigent care needs to be surveyed from the standpoint of economics," said Libasci. "We need to know how much the taxpayers can afford to pay (for indigent care) and what's the best way to do it."

He also took issue with the County Board of Supervisors for its lack of planning.

"My main beef," Libasci went on, "is that year in and year out they (the supervisors) have no plans."

"The Board of Supervisors has refused to commit itself on any line of attack. It always has been waiting for something, first Medicare, then the new medical school..."

A study and recommendations by a management consultant firm could help the board decide its future course of action, the hospital head believes.

Dr. Merlin K. DuVal Jr., dean of the University of Arizona's College of Medicine told the group some county hospitals for the indigent of all ages already are in the process of shifting their roles to general community hospitals, "accepting paying patients at the same time other hospitals are caring for the indigent under federally financed programs."

He said the time has come "for all hospitals to coordinate their efforts to solve a problem in which we all have a stake."

Essentially, the heads of community hospitals want to know what realistic expansion goals they should set for the next few years to meet the impact of Medicare and Medicaid on their facilities.

Libasci believes that criteria for care at the County Hospital might be outdated. He pointed out:

"We can remove a leg but we can't put an artificial leg on to replace it. We can pull a tooth but we can't fill a cavity. There are no clear policies on what we can or can't do."

The group, which included the Tucson Hospital Planning Council, Board of Supervisors and the Tucson Community Council, felt perhaps the U.S. Public Health Service would make a local survey without charge. It is to be contacted.

Meanwhile, those involved are to make up lists of questions which should be answered by a major survey. These will be compiled prior to the next meeting Oct. 9.

Escobedo Ordered Held In Dope Case

CHICAGO (AP) — Danny Escobedo, freed from a murder conviction in 1964 by a historic U.S. Supreme Court ruling, has been ordered held to the U.S. District Court for possible grand jury action on charges of selling narcotics.

During the hearing yesterday before U.S. Commissioner Bruno E. Nowogrodski, a federal narcotics agent testified he had seen Escobedo hand a package to another agent on the evening of Aug. 3. The witness said the package handed to the agent, who was posing as an addict, contained heroin.

A request by attorneys for Escobedo that his $100,000 bond be reduced was denied by Nowogrodski. Escobedo has been held in Cook County Jail since his arrest last Thursday.

FIRST '67-68 AWARD

Trade Bureau Honors Ewing

Dr. Russell C. Ewing, head of the department of history at the University of Arizona, is the first winner of the Tucson Trade Bureau's faculty recognition award for the 1967-68 year.

Ewing, who is beginning his 30th year with UA, received his bachelor, master and doctoral degrees from the University of California at Berkeley.

The Kansas-born historian served in the Navy for four years during World War II and was regional historian for the National Park Service before entering the service.

Honored with a Smith-Mundt fellowship under sponsorship of the Department of State, Ewing spent 1956-57 in Bogota, Colombia, lecturing on American history and government at the University of the Andes.

He was selected by his colleagues to present the 32nd annual liberal arts lecture the following year.

In addition to research on Mexico, South America and the Caribbean, Ewing has written Picket Case Plea Goes To High Court

The Arizona Supreme Court has been asked to review an Appellate Court denial of an attempt to halt prosecution of J. T. Allen, accused of scuffling with police Feb. 4.

Allen, 6818 E. Oberlin Dr., acted after the Court of Appeals declined to reconsider its denial of a writ of prohibition.

Allen and another man, Joseph F. Galati, 3745 E. 25th St., are accused of hindering police during picketing demonstrations in front of the Star-Citizen plant.

They were both freed of charges at the Justice Court level, but the county attorney's office refiled the allegations in Superior Court.

The Supreme Court earlier refused a request to review the denial of a writ of prohibition for Galati.

In 1940 he traveled more than 2,500 miles tracing the route of Spanish explorer, Francisco Vasquez de Coronado.

Ewing also was the first president of the Rocky Mountain Council of Latin-American Studies and is a member of the American Historical Association.

The award was made today at the Pioneer International Hotel.

Niger President Arrives Tomorrow

President Diiori Hamani of the African nation of Niger will arrive here at 1:20 p.m. tomorrow for a two-day, informal visit.

At Tucson International Airport he will be greeted by University of Arizona officials, the Vigilantes, foreign and American students and Mayor Lew Davis. He will be presented flowers by UA coed Nancy Ruzicka.

Later in the afternoon he will tour the university experimental farm at 4040 N. Campbell Ave.

At 7 p.m., Hamani will be guest of honor at a student-sponsored dinner in the Student Union faculty dining room. At 9 p.m., he will meet with members of the UA African Student Union Organization in the faculty lounge.

Saturday morning, he will visit the Empire and the Thurber ranches, in the Sonoita area. At noon, he will have a chuckwagon lunch at the Thurber ranch.

He will arrive at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Farmer's Investment Company in Continental and will view deep well pumps, feed lots and cotton acreage.

At about 4 p.m. he will visit Mission San Xavier del Bac.

Gov. Jack Williams will greet Hamani at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at a reception at Pioneer International Hotel. He will have dinner there at the hotel with his hosts, UA President Dr. Richard A. Harvill and the Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Lew Davis will name Hamani an honorary citizen of Tucson and the chamber will give him a sheriff's deputy badge.

Hamani leaves Tucson at 10:30 a.m. Sunday. His destination is not yet known.

That's Dinner All Mideast

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Middle East dominated U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's private dinner for the Big Four foreign ministers Tuesday night and Vietnam did not come up, a spokesman for Thant said.

The spokesman said the dinner was primarily a social occasion and "topics included the Middle East, Cyprus and private meetings of the Security Council at the foreign ministers' level."

He did not explain why Thant did not bring up the war in Vietnam or why none of the others did. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, British Foreign Secretary George Brown, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko were noncommittal in comments to newsmen.
